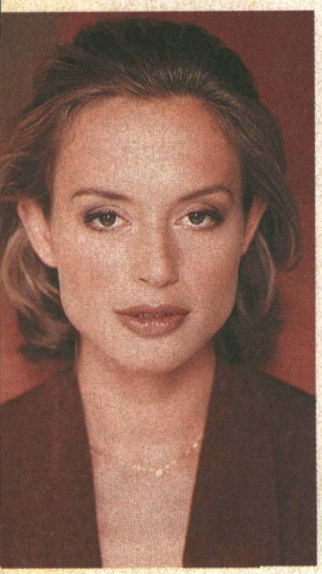
Big Norm, balloons in drag – all in



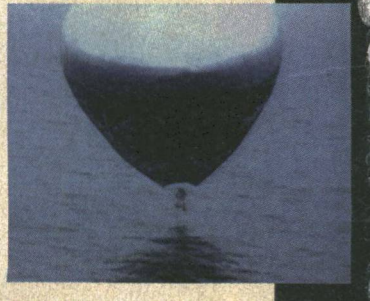
'THIS is my dream job,' says Jessica Whittaker, host of Sky's new film programme p:review. 'And it's the thing to watch if you're a film buff like me.' The show, which is part of Max on Friday, will take viewers through the coming week of movies on Sky. 'It'll be quirky and I hope to put a bit of a Barry Norman angle on it!' she says. So, who does she rate in the movies? 'Susan Sarandon. She has a strong presence. I like a bit of girl power – but not from the Spice Girls!'
Sky MovieMax, from Friday 11th, 7.30pm

'THE most outrageous dating show ever' is how the billing describes Singled Out. Contestants choose their ideal mate by a process of elimination from a studio audience filled with the opposite sex. Burning questions like 'Your belly button: is it an innie or an outie?' help to isolate their dream date. The show was conceived in America, but has now been made for Britain, and is hosted by Sarah Cawood (right) and Richard Blackwood, known in comedy circles as 'a young Eddie Murphy'.
MTV, Fridays, 6.30pm and Sundays, 3.30pm

PICTURE, if you can, Tony of Men Behaving Badly, the quintessential lad played by Neil Morrissey, as a woman! In Hunting Venus, a forthcoming film for ITV, Morrissey is cast as a former male pop star who has undergone a complete sex change. The film is directed by and stars Martin Clunes, who played Gary in Men Behaving Badly. And Caroline Quentin, who played Gary's long-suffering girlfriend, Dorothy, has set up a successful TV production company with Morrissey, called Quentin Morrissey. Clearly, Men Behaving Badly fostered genuine friendships. 'I love Cazza,' says Morrissey of Quentin. 'We've helped each other through tough times.' As for his own bouts of behaving badly, Morrissey owns up to one epic drinking spree on his 21st birthday with Mel Gibson, no less, during the making of The Bounty.
Men Behaving Badly, UK Gold, Thursdays, 10.10pm

SINCE making Hamish Macbeth, Robert Carlyle has been catapulted by the likes of Trainspotting and The Full Monty to major international stardom. Of course, he was already a well-established actor before Hamish Macbeth, and was well known to viewers of TV crime drama as Albie, the psychopath who stabbed Supt Billborough in what was arguably the most memorable sequence of Cracker. But it was his performance as a Highland bobby in the BBC's charming adaptations of MC Beaton's novels that earned Carlyle television fame. And the village of Plockton – reinvented in Hamish Macbeth as Lochdubh – also became a star, attracting nearly as many tourists as did the Irish village of Avoca, the real-life Ballykissangel.
UK Gold, starts Wednesday 16th, 9.40pm

AN excellent series called Great Escapes, made for the Discovery Channel by ITV, tells 13 remarkable stories about real-life escapes, from World War I to the present day. In one of them, Richard Branson talks in depth for the first time about his dramatic brush with death in 1987, when he forsook the comfort of his own aircraft to attempt the first transatlantic flight by hot air balloon. After Virgin Challenger – the biggest balloon ever built – ditched in the Irish Sea, Branson's fellow balloonist Per Lindstrand ended up in the water, but Branson was left aboard as the out-of-control balloon soared back into the sky. Eventually, both men were rescued from the sea. Lindstrand says, 'It shows why Richard is a millionaire and I'm not. When I go in the water, I swim for two hours. When he goes in the water, he's 40 yards from an airborne helicopter!'
Discovery, Wednesday 2nd, 9.00pm



and a bad lad September

JONATHAN FRAKES succeeds James Brolin (who certainly doesn't need the money now he's Mr Barbra Streisand) as host of Beyond Belief, having played Commander William Riker on Star Trek: The Next Generation. The series about bizarre events invites the viewer to decide which stories are true and which are not. They include the tale of Jason Neeman, a young man who discovered a wallet hidden in some bushes and returned it to an address scrawled on a slip of paper inside. The address turned out to be a huge mansion, and it transpired the wallet's owner was dead, and that Neeman was a distant relative and heir to a $40 million fortune.

GEORGE WENDT, who played Big Norm Peterson, that beer-guzzling, wise-cracking regular at Cheers bar in Boston, is to host a Cheers weekend on Paramount Comedy Channel this month. The series notched up 276 episodes – 12 classics of which will be shown over the weekend. But although the show won 26 Emmy's – more than any other TV show in history, it wasn't an instant hit. 'I knew it was good, but quality is not enough,' says Wendt, in London to star in the play Art. 'The ratings were abysmal, and we were up against big drama hits like Magnum. But Cosby, which started on NBC on Thursday nights, helped to get us up and running. Then we won an Emmy for best comedy, and suddenly the show became a juggernaut.' In 1993, Ted Danson, who played barman Sam Malone, decided that the juggernaut should pull over. 'It was hard for both financial and emotional reasons,' says Wendt. 'After 11 years it was as if we'd been through high school, college and the army together and, given the choice, I would have kept going. But Teddy is a wise man and he made the right decision.' Wendt still sees Danson socially, and is also close to Woody Harrelson (who played dim bartender Woody Boyd) and Rhea Perlman (acid-tongued waitress Carla). He lives in Los Angeles and, unlike Norm, has a happy marriage and five children aged between nine and 29. In other respects, though, he is very much like Norm. 'I do drink beer. Nobody is that good an actor,' he says. In fact, not only does he drink beer, but he is actually paid to endorse Coors, one of the many advantages of having played Norm. So far, his post-Cheers career has been mostly confined to movies – including Spiceworld – and he is unashamed about cashing in on his size. 'My heroes are all big guys,' he confides. 'People like Oliver Hardy, John Candy, who was awesome, and Robbie Coltrane.' He doesn't add, of course, that there are plenty of people whose all-time favourite big guy is Big Norm Peterson, aka George Wendt.

A sneak preview of what's coming to cable

- Roseanne's eagerly awaited chat show comes to Living in October, promising plenty of uncompromising opinions from Hollywood's loudest star. Cable Guide has just one question – will any of her guests be able to get a word in edgeways?

- Hot gossip from America suggests that Brad Pitt may be guest starring as himself in an episode of Friends. His eagerness to be on the show may have something to do with the fact that his current girlfriend is none other than Jennifer Aniston, who plays Rachel.

- Following the success of the animated movie, Disney Channel are bringing Hercules to the TV screen around Christmas time. Disney's Hercules – The Series will follow the half-mortal, half-god teenager as he tries to cope with the pressures of growing up.

- Just when you thought it was safe to turn on the TV, Discovery Channel bites back with Shark Week. Coming up in October are nine hours of shark premieres, plus showings of some of the channel's most popular shark shows from the past. That's what we call programming with teeth.

- There's more stomach-churning trials in store for the competitors of Endurance UK, when the show's new series starts on Challenge in October. On the menu, we're told, are buckets of vindaloo and locust quiche. Pass the Alka Selzer, please!

YOU'LL BE SEEING MORE OF LISA KUDROW

When Friends premiered back in 1994, Lisa Kudrow won the hearts of millions of fans with her adorably eccentric New Age airhead Phoebe Buffay. Now she's followed the examples of her series co-stars and made the move to the big screen, recently scoring her first starring part in the sublimely silly comedy Romy and Michele's High School Reunion.

AGE: 35

BIG BREAK: As the dizzy, folk-singing Phoebe in the feel-good smash Friends, a role for which she has been nominated for loads of top awards.

BIG MISHAP: Kudrow was the original choice for the part of Roz Doyle, the producer of the radio show in Frasier, but was replaced by Peri Gilpin before completing the pilot episode in 1993.

SHE SAYS: 'Playing dumb was the easiest way to get experience. I didn't dare judge it. There was no "What does this mean for society?" But along the way I saw advantages to playing dumb in real life, too. People don't expect too much.'

FORTHCOMING ATTRACTIONS: Lisa's soon to be seen in a clutch of movies. She plays a wannabe actress in Clockwatchers, a comedy about office temps, stars alongside Robert De Niro and Billy Crystal in the Mafia farce Analyse This, appears with a flirtatious Christina Ricci in the comedy The Opposite of Sex, and clocks in with Meg Ryan and Diane Keaton in the angst-filled tragi-comedy Hanging Up.

SEE HER IN: Friends, Sky One, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 6.30pm and 11.30pm, Thursdays 9.00pm. Romy & Michelle's High School Reunion, Sky Box Office movies on-demand, starts 9 September.

Back with a vengeance!

Patrick Macnee returns to our screens as hero and gent Steed in the cult series 'The Avengers'. Interview: Hilary Bonner

Granada Plus

The Avengers: Weekdays
10.00am, 3.00pm, 8.00pm

A LEGEND has returned – complete with bowler hat, umbrella, Savile Row suit and hand-made shoes. On TV and in the cinema, John Steed is back, and after nearly 40 years, The Avengers is bigger than ever.

Patrick Macnee, the man responsible more than anyone else for creating the show's unique style, is at last reaping the rewards – both financially and in every other way – for his part in one of the most famous TV programmes ever made.

In the recently premiered Avengers movie, the highly acclaimed Ralph Fiennes plays Steed – but he made it clear from the beginning that the person he is really playing is Patrick Macnee as Steed. No actor could be paid a finer tribute, and Macnee knows it.

'I told him, "I'd love to see your portrayal of Steed,"' says 76-year-old Patrick, speaking at his California home. 'I was so flattered,' he continues.

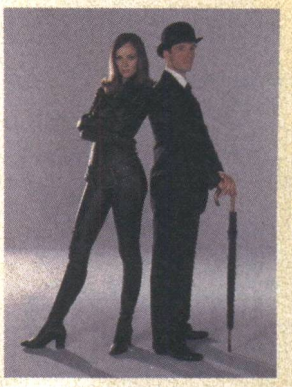
There is something else that delights Patrick about the new movie. 'Steed still doesn't carry a gun; his number-one weapon remains the umbrella,' he says. 'That's a wonderful thing in this day and age.'

Old Etonian Patrick has an aversion to casual violence which, he says, stems back to his days as a Naval officer commanding a torpedo boat during World War II.

'I know the damage weapons can do,' he says. 'I often think the only justifiable use of violence on screen is the way we did it in The Avengers.'

Indeed, the show's tongue-in-cheek approach has probably never been successfully copied. Virtual armies of baddies could be dismissed with a furl of Steed's umbrella, a kick from one of Honor Blackman's kinky boots or just a dirty look from a catsuit-clad Diana Rigg.

The Avengers girls – the others were Linda Thorson and Joanna Lumley in The New Avengers – were as much a part of the show as their eccentric English gentleman colleague.



Uma Thurman and Ralph Fiennes star in the new 'Avengers' film

Patrick, a great supporter of them all, admits that his favourite has always been Diana Rigg as Mrs Peel.

'The shows I made with Di were the best Avengers, the best scripts, the best everything,' he says

But he is unsure about Ralph Fiennes's Avengers girl, Uma Thurman. 'I just hope that she doesn't come across as being too dominant,' he says.

It is the Diana Rigg series that will be the first to run on cable – many of the early Honor Blackman shows and the original Avengers that Patrick made with Ian Hendry do not exist on film.

In spite of the huge success of The Avengers (a hit in 130 countries, with video releases in America), Macnee never earned big money out of the show until recently.

He has fought a relentless battle to regain rights that fell by the wayside during years of studio and management wrangles for himself and other cast, and recently succeeded in a legal action to stop the sale of pirate Avengers videos.

The Old Avenger, now married to his third wife Baba, is enjoying a renaissance – and he even has a role in the new Ralph Fiennes film.

'You don't see me, but you hear my voice,' he says. 'I'm a sort of presence.'

Somehow, that seems very appropriate indeed.

The two sides of Kristin

Since the success of 'The English Patient', Kristin Scott Thomas has become hot property in the US. But career setbacks and personal tragedies have helped to keep her feet firmly on the ground. Interview: Garth Pearce

Sky Premier

The English Patient
Thursday 10th 8.00pm

PREMIERE

Kristin remains modest about her growing fame: 'I'm not all that glamorous, and I'm certainly not a star,' she says

WHEN Kristin Scott Thomas agreed to star in The English Patient in 1995, the film was only half financed and had no support from Hollywood. Somehow, it seemed to sum up her acting career.

Kristin, then 35, was one of many English actresses who had been tipped for big success, but hadn't quite made it. Even her most memorable scene, when her character lost out to Andie MacDowell in winning Hugh Grant's love in Four Weddings and a Funeral, carried the cruel edge of dashed expectations.

But The English Patient – the story of a doomed affair in the Sahara desert – transformed her life. She won an Oscar nomination for the film in March 1997, and suddenly she became one of Hollywood's most sought-after stars.

It has clearly taken some getting used to. We met in July in Italy, where she was filming Up at the Villa, based on a Somerset Maugham novella set in Florence. Although she leads a cast that includes Sean Penn, Anne Bancroft and British stalwarts Derek Jacobi and James Fox, there is a feeling that she half expects it all to slip from her grasp.

'I am not all that glamorous and I'm certainly not a star,' she insists. 'I'll never move to America and don't think this will last beyond the next year or so. I've grown used to disappointment, and have other things in my life, and that does help to give me a sense of protection.'

Scott Thomas, now 38, talks in a clipped, slightly reserved manner. She regards her home life in Paris, with fertility doctor husband François, and children Hannah, nine, and Joseph, seven, as what she calls 'my rock'. She has been around long enough to know that, unless you are ruthlessly self-obsessive, stardom can often be elusive and short-lived.

She saw it evaporate in the mid-Eighties after an excellent performance as rich-bitch Lady Brenda Last in A Handful of Dust, which won her a BAFTA award for Most Promising Newcomer. Following this success, her film career faded as she became cornered in a variety of television drama series.

Yet today, her latest film, The Horse Whisperer, which co-stars Robert Redford (see our feature: pages 14-15), is a big hit. And for her next role she will co-star with Harrison Ford in Sydney Pollack's Random Hearts.

She talks of this change in fortune matter-of-factly, and with little visible excitement: 'I now get a pile of scripts with lead parts, where before I would get them only occasionally, and I often receive telephone calls from Los Angeles about various options,' she says. 'But I'm not some perfect-looking beauty, and enough has happened in the past to make me cautious about the whole thing.'

At the heart of her low-key approach are personal tragedies so devastating they almost seem to come from a script themselves. She was just four when her father, a royal naval pilot, died in a freak flying accident. Her mother then married another pilot two years later, only for history to repeat itself in his accidental death, when Kristin was ten.

The tragedy is not something you will hear Scott Thomas talk about in public. All you will get from her is a reference to being sent away to the upmarket Cheltenham Ladies College in the wake of the second death: 'It was the wrong choice for me at the time and I have few fond memories of school,' she says.

Kristin drifted between jobs in her late teens, and became an au pair in France at the age of 20, where she met her future husband. By this time, her weight had ballooned to 12 stone, which is almost impossible to imagine on her now svelte five-and-a-half foot frame.

'There were no special diets,' she says. 'I suffered from all the self-doubts, of course, but the weight just dropped off me over the years, with marriage, motherhood and tearing around in this mad life of mine. I believe that there is a Hollywood obsession with body weight and staying thin all the time, which is not at all healthy.

'One of the many joys of living in Europe is that we are not ruled by diet fads or obsessions. We eat, drink and live normally in Paris, without someone calling by with news of the latest gym or club to go to where we should be seen to be thought fashionable. I can't handle any of that.'

Her thoughts on the success of The English Patient, the film which has led to her rapid rise towards the Hollywood A List, are guarded and cautious.

'It was a good script and cast, but I can't honestly say now that I thought it would have such an impact,' she says. 'Of course, when I saw the finished product, I thought it was marvellous. That was thanks to a great director, Anthony Minghella, and it was his vision that made it all work for the rest of us.'

She remains equally down-to-earth when looking to the future: 'I have great support from my husband and children, who are the most important aspect of my life,' she says. 'I can't rush across the world to take some marvellous role. It is a matter of fitting in home life and work, which means that there are always going to be disappointments. But I am enjoying it all – while it lasts.'

Dream

Do young football stars make dream boyfriends? Everyone from the chairman's wife to the SOCCER stardom is the stuff that laddish dreams are made of. After waiting impatiently in the wings with the youth side, you're finally offered that contract to play Premiership football in the first team.

Not only that, the team's top player – who happens to be your brother and the sensible ace to your undisciplined wild card – has cleared the pitch to give you star billing by accepting a deal in Turkey.

You've got loadsamoney, you're swaggering around in designer clothes and driving a flashy convertible. You're up there with the big boys, a member of that exclusive club, The Dream Team, which makes you every girl's ultimate fashion accessory.

So opportunity knocks for striker-with-attitude and trainee babe-magnet Sean Hocknell – played by 20-year-old Daymon Britton – in the brand-new series of Dream Team.

After a superlative debut (Cable Guide readers voted it best new programme on cable earlier this year), Sky One's soccer soap is back for a twice-weekly, 78-episode second season.

This time there's a new chairman, self-made millionaire Jerry Block (former EastEnders actor Michael Melia), who has a young, sultry and gorgeous trophy wife, Lynda (Alison King, whose boyfriend is Phil Middlemiss, perhaps better known as Coronation Street's Des Barnes).

Lynda can't bear football but is happy to bare whatever else for as many of the first team as possible. Then there are beautiful canteen assistants Kelly James and Julie Alexander, played by Emma Gilmour and Julie Smith.

Sean didn't have much luck in the romance stakes last series. He was heartbroken when Nathalie (Helen Latham) married his brother Dean, but could things be about to change?

Daymon grins as he says: 'I turned up for the first day of rehearsals and there were all these new women, all these babes, sitting there. I thought, "Great!" I was trying to be cool, you know, act like a seasoned pro. There was a rumour that something would happen between me and the chairman's wife, but that hasn't come to fruition.

'In fact, I've asked and asked where the action is for Sean, but I have no idea where the love interest is for him. Mind you, he's still feeling pretty burned.

'Remember all that stuff with Nathalie? It was true love from the moment he saw her – love at first sight, man. He'd known her for about an hour and then discovered she was his brother's fiancée. What a killer!'

Daymon, who's own true love of the last three years, Donna Moran still lives in Newcastle, discovered that owning a flash car like Sean – a red convertible Mazda MX5 – doesn't come cheap. He's a bit of a smarty pants who lists Paul Smith, John Rocha, Kenzo and DKNY as his favourite designers, but what Daymon would like, what he'd really, really like, is a Porsche.

'But the insurance alone would be about £3000, so for the moment I'm making do with my push-bike.'

Never mind, his famous uncle, actor Robson Green, has promised to advise him financially when he's at that stage in his career when he can afford some serious wheels – just as he's there whenever his very likeable nephew needs help.

One recent piece of advice Daymon has sought from his uncle is how to improve his technique for acting drunk.

'I haven't done any drunk scenes yet and I'm really paranoid about it, because it's so hard to get right. Robson said "Just be yourself," and then joked: "Have a couple of beers before you do the scene."

'Well, I've done that indoors, practising in front of my mates, but I ended up going over the top and falling over.'

The lovely, giggly Alison King, back at base in Bushey, after filming a shopping trip for the series with 'It' girl Tara Palmer-Tomkinson, is very protective of her character. So, Ali, do you think Lynda is a bit of a tart?

'Definite tart!' she says tartly.

'She might appear to be a bit of a bimbo because she's a shopaholic and her taste in clothes is, well ... put it this way, she's very into leopardskin – it's sort of her trademark. When she first met Jerry at the duty free make-up counter, where she worked at Heathrow, she was intent on catching a rich man.

'But she actually falls very deeply in love with him and although she's flirtatious, he is too. She flirts with some of the players, and particularly someone who's a bit of a challenge. She's sensitive but she's got a temper, and although she's not a bitch, you wouldn't want to cross her.'

Unlike Lynda, who can't stand football, Alison loves it. She and Phil Middlemiss, who met in Tenerife three years ago, are both Liverpool supporters. 'I asked him to explain the rules to me. He taught me everything I know and now I love it!'

Lions and hyenas, volcanoes and storms – just part of the line-up for National Geographic Channel's first anniversary in the UK

The truth about lions and hyenas

National Geographic Channel

Eternal Enemies: Lions and Hyenas
Tuesday 1st 9.00pm

THE deadly rivalry between two great hunters is explored in Eternal Enemies: Lions and Hyenas, showing as part of National Geographic Channel's first UK anniversary celebrations.

The two animals are mortal foes on the plains of Africa, with hyenas generally regarded as vicious scavengers, and lions perceived as proud, noble hunters. The reality, however, is rather different.

Hyenas are actually Africa's dominant hunters, and very often lions will steal their hard-won food away from them. To make matters worse for the hyena, they are often attacked and killed by lions, who don't even eat the carcass, but simply walk away, leaving it to rot.

The film was shot by the award-winning South African filmmakers Dereck and Beverly Joubert and challenges many of the myths that surround the two animals, particularly where the hyena is concerned. Its bad reputation has resulted in persecution, and the animals' numbers are seriously dwindling.

The line-up for National Geographic's first anniversary also includes a look at the deadly fish of tropical South America in Piranha!, and a report on the devastation caused by the volcanic eruption on the island of Montserrat in Violent Volcano.

Realm of the Great White Bear focuses on the polar bears of Svalbard as they hibernate in the Arctic winter, and Storm follows the scientists who spend their lives trying to understand and predict some of the 40,000 storms that occur on the earth each day.

Snake Invasion reveals how the island of Guam in the Pacific is being infested with brown tree snakes that are devastating its wildlife, while Yellowstone – Realm of the Coyote looks at the coyotes of America's Yellowstone National Park as they endure a harsh winter.

At the age of 61, Hollywood's most enduring heart-throb is back in the saddle in 'The Horse Whisperer'. Interview: Angie Errigo

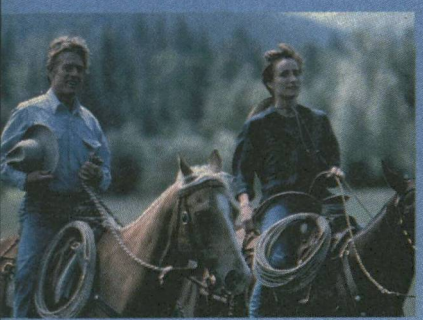
The Sundance Kid rides again

WHATEVER it is that makes a great movie star and an icon, Robert Redford still has IT. And IT still makes him uncomfortable – any reference to his person (or his personal life) making him flinch. 'I've had to balance out for the last 30 years trying to have a life and keeping my privacy and still doing my work, because it's public work.'

On screen, the charisma is intact in The Horse Whisperer, Redford's new epic, romantic drama adapted from the best-seller by Nicholas Evans. It's the story of a girl and her horse, both physically and emotionally maimed in a horrific accident, and their progress with the remarkable, healing horseman to whom the girl's mother turns in her desperation.

Redford stars with Kristin Scott Thomas and a team of the film industry's best-trained horses. Redford as the 'whisperer', Tom Booker, makes the perfect mythic hero: the Western loner, a man of few words but great compassion and capability, long on magnetism and lean of bod.

PHOTOS: DOUGLAS KIRKLAND/SYGMA, MOVIESTORE COLLECTION



Off screen, the Sundance Kid is ageing gracefully, too. It is hard to believe he just turned 61 and has four grandchildren. Dressed in his habitual jeans, polo shirt and boots, he still has the famously blue eyes, the tousled blond thatch and that dazzling smile that was making women weak at the knees before Tom Cruise had teeth. He looks every bit the keen athlete who skis, plays tennis, airglides and, yes, rides.

At the same time, the topics that most animate him – politics, environmentalism, art – confirm his reputation as sensitive and intellectual. Most of his films, including Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, The Sting and All the President's Men, which made him the number one box office star, reflect one or other of his own interests. Of his own favourites he says, 'Butch was the most fun, The Candidate I liked because it was my idea, Jeremiah Johnson was very, very personal, and All the President's Men [which he also produced] I'm very proud of.'

The Horse Whisperer is the fifth film Redford has directed (his first, Ordinary People, won him an Oscar for Best Director). He also produced it and stars, the first time he's taken on all three jobs, and he's passionate about the film. 'I don't know how to do anything unless I can make it personal because that's how to do your best work. The things that are most interesting to me are issues around my own landscape and my own worlds, my own country. I love America, I feel I know it, and I'm anxious to mine the country for the stories I think are in it.'

He bought the film rights to The Horse Whisperer before the book was even finished because he connected immediately with the elements of healing, horses and the characters. 'To keep it simple and yet deal with the wonderful stories that were there was a real balancing act. It's a love story of the girl and the horse, the horse and the healer, the healer and the mother … there's a whole lot of love there,' he laughs. 'But the one that was most interesting to me was the mother-daughter relationship. That was very attractive to me.'

Redford gave the film quite a different outcome than the one in the book. 'I wanted a tougher ending. As I got into making the film, suddenly this voice began to speak to me about sacrifice and about taking the higher ground for the greater good.' He admits that self-sacrifice may be an old-fashioned concept but insists, 'What I would hope people take away from the film is the cost of redemption and healing.' What people will also take away is a drenched hankie from a satisfying blub.

One of Redford's proudest achievements is the Sundance Institute, which he founded in 1981 to nurture new filmmakers with financial support and training. Its annual Sundance Film Festival is now the major showcase for new independent films and Quentin Tarantino is one of many young filmmakers to have benefitted from the Sundance experience. 'We wanted to take independent film and bring it up front and centre so that the industry would stay broad and diverse,' Redford says.

To create an audience for such films, Redford devised The Sundance Channel on cable, which he plans to launch in the UK and Europe next year. 'It's a service that is taking the Sundance Festival and putting it on the television. Here's a chance for you to see things you're not going to see in the marketplace.'

As for his own plans, he observes: 'As a director, I like to sit behind and put everything together and compose all the details to create a whole. As an actor, I like blocking everything out, so the two didn't mesh very well. On the other hand, as I get older I realise that I have such a clear idea about what I want to do that I can't really trust someone else to do it. If I see a role for myself, I would love to be able to just act in something, I really would.'

Travelling the globe has become an everyday past-time with the Internet. In the film, Annie (Kristin Scott Thomas) starts her search for a horse whisperer on the internet and finds many different ways to stay in touch throughout her journey. So has Robert Redford taken to cruising the information superhighway himself? 'No, largely because I haven't had time. I've been so preoccupied making the film I haven't even read a newspaper or watched television. I will. It would be a terrible mistake to ignore the new technology and how it's changing our lives.'

The fantastic four

As Sky One viewers enjoy the final series of 'Seinfeld' and Paramount Comedy Channel goes back to series one, Brian Viner sizes up the show that obsessed America

Paramount Comedy

Seinfeld: series one
Daily 9.30pm

THERE is, perhaps, only one comedian in the world who could have filled the London Palladium, twice over, on the night of the World Cup Final. His name is Jerry Seinfeld and it is not as though he needed the money. For Seinfeld is also the Croesus of comedians. In 1996-1997 he is estimated to have earned around $67 million from his NBC sitcom Seinfeld, more than enough to sustain his collection of 25 vintage Porsches. And NBC didn't do too badly, either. Indeed, when John F Welch, the boss of General Electric, parent company of NBC, realised that Seinfeld was serious about bringing the series to a close after nine years, he reportedly 'went numb'. When Welch had recovered, he waved a contract in front of Seinfeld, promising him $5million per episode if he would commit to just one more 22-episode series. But Seinfeld wouldn't budge, and the series duly ended on 14 May this year watched by around 80 million Americans. Not counting Oscar ceremonies and Super Bowls, that places Seinfeld third, behind the final episode of *M*A*S*H* and the 'Who Shot JR?' episode of Dallas, in the country's most-watched programmes of all time.

Seinfeld not only wanted to end on a high, with his show second in the US ratings only to the hugely popular ER. He also craved a return to his first showbusiness love: stand-up comedy. Hence his two gigs at the Palladium, part of a rather short and rather eccentric 'world' tour, which also included Iceland. In fact, it is consistent with Seinfeld the series that Seinfeld the man should choose to take his world tour to Iceland. For Seinfeld thrives on decidedly surreal subject matter: a Catholic dentist who converts to Judaism so that he can make Jewish jokes; an anti-abortion owner of a pizza restaurant who fails to wash his hands after going to the toilet. And so on.

For nine years, such wacky characters weaved in and out of the lives of the programme's staple quartet of Jerry (Seinfeld himself), and his friends Elaine (Julia Louis-Dreyfus), Kramer (Michael Richards) and George (Jason Alexander). In a rare interview, Alexander told me that he originally based the neurotic, self-obsessed character of George on Woody Allen, until he realised that George was actually meant to be the alter ego of writer Larry David, who devised the series with Seinfeld.

For the first two years, however, nobody could have foreseen the impact that David and Seinfeld's series would eventually have – such an impact that news of its demise dominated the front page of the earnest New York Times. Actually, the factor that led indirectly to Seinfeld's extraordinary success was itself worthy of a bizarre Seinfeld plot. For if Ted Danson hadn't decided to run off with Whoopi Goldberg, then Cheers would have carried on for at least one more season. But in 1993, when Cheers finally ended, Seinfeld replaced it in NBC's coveted 9.00pm Thursday slot. And that third series was arguably the strongest of the lot, containing several episodes that for comic genius, stand comparison with the best of Fawlty Towers.

Of course, only 12 episodes of Fawlty Towers were ever made. Seinfeld, by contrast, lasted for 169 episodes, which was largely to do with having an ever-changing team of writers. When I sat in at a rehearsal of the penultimate episode, every line was fussed over by a posse of fresh-faced youngsters, mostly Harvard grads, mostly under 30, and mostly earning at least $1million a year. In fact, even people only tangentially involved with Seinfeld have made pots of money out of it. A year ago, a court decided a Milwaukee brewing executive had been unfairly dismissed for quoting some risqué Seinfeld dialogue to a female colleague, which she interpreted as sexual harassment. He was awarded over $2million.

As for those fresh-faced writers, leading them was the fresh-faced but 44-year-old Seinfeld himself. One of the many strengths of Seinfeld is that it is a classic ensemble comedy. Indeed, Alexander criticised NBC bosses for attempting to woo only Seinfeld and ignoring the other three stars in their efforts to secure one more series. There had already been a stand-off between himself, Richards and Louis-Dreyfus on the one side, and NBC on the other, over money. Last year, they argued that, compared with Seinfeld, they were unfairly remunerated. After a bitter row, their pay was increased from $250,000 to $600,000 per episode. But NBC didn't learn its lesson. If the three of them had really wanted to do one more series, said Alexander, then Seinfeld would have done it.

Instead Seinfeld breathed its last at the end of the one-hour finale to the ninth series, which is currently running on Sky One. Don't miss it.

'SOME 14-YEAR-OLD CRITIC IN "THE TELEGRAPH" SAID I SHOULD HAVE ASKED TOM CRUISE ABOUT HIS SEX LIFE. WHAT SHOULD I HAVE ASKED HIM? "DO YOU SWING BOTH WAYS, TOM?"'

Barry changes channels. And why not?

He almost came to blows with the likes of Robert De Niro and John Wayne! But from now on Barry Norman will be handling tough guys – and beautiful dames – on Sky instead of the BBC. Interview: Brian Viner

FOR most of his career, Clark Gable was an MGM man through and through. Which brings me rather neatly, as Barry Norman would say, to Barry Norman. For as Gable was to MGM, so, for 26 years, was Norman to the BBC. It seemed impossible to imagine those lived-in features looking out from anywhere but BBC TV. Until Sky made the doyen of film critics – and big fan of The Godfather, incidentally – an offer he couldn't refuse.

'They were flatteringly eager to employ me,' he reports. 'I wanted to be neat and tidy and finish at the BBC at the end of next year. But I started thinking that it will be the beginning of the millennium as well as the end of an old one, so it might be nice to try something different. One of the attractions of Sky is their enthusiasm for movies. And, yes, they did indeed make a very good offer.'

Sky offered Norman a three-year contract and also tempted him with something he had craved at the Beeb, namely a settled slot. It had irritated both him and his fans that Film 98 and its predecessors were endlessly hoiked around the schedules. Now, however, we will all know where to find him. Barry Norman's Film Night will go out on Sundays at 9.00pm on Sky Premier. The format will not differ greatly from that of Film 98, but it will have different theme music, which is Norman's biggest regret about leaving the BBC. 'The theme music was incomparably the best on television,' he says.

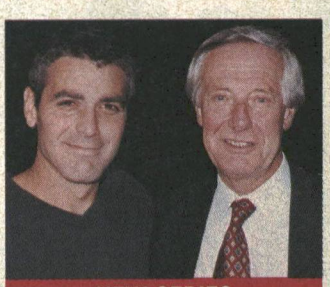
As Norman says, a new era is about to begin. On the other hand, an old era has finished, and so I ask him which of his many BBC interviews is his favourite. 'Probably the one I did with David Lean,' he says. 'I had never met him before that day and he came in for a five-minute conversation, but 45 minutes later we were still at it. So rather than waste all that material, we made a special programme out of it, which was repeated two or three times. I think that of British directors, he was number one.'

But never mind the directors. What about the sex bombs? Which of them has lit his fire? 'I think Michelle Pfeiffer is the most beautiful woman on screen,' he says. 'But I was much more attracted to Sigourney Weaver. She's intelligent, and I think intelligence is very sexy. I also interviewed Kim Basinger at Cannes last year. Now she is stunning. She turned up with her hair scraped back and wearing little make-up, yet she looked amazing. She has the most incredibly flawless skin.'

Norman has been accused of genuflecting before certain Hollywood stars, an accusation that he admits to being seriously narked by.

'Some 14-year-old critic in The Telegraph said I should have asked Tom Cruise about his sex life. What should I have asked him? "Do you swing both ways, Tom?" Mine aren't like political interviews, where the person you're talking to is certainly a liar and probably a crook. Actors are entertainers. Besides, I only interview people I admire, and it's usually me who wants to do it, not them. I could be acerbic, but they'd walk out.'

Which is not to say that Norman is cowed by bullies. He once had a stand-up, nose-to-nose barney with Robert De Niro in a corridor at the Savoy, and says that there was no time for certain disconcerting images from Raging Bull, GoodFellas, The Godfather Part II, or Cape Fear to flash through his mind. On the other hand, he admits to considerable anxiety when, in 1969, shortly before the premiere of True Grit, six Paramount people had to restrain John Wayne from thumping him.



NEW SERIES

Barry Norman's memorable encounter with George Clooney

Sky Premier

Barry Norman's Film Night
Sundays 9.00pm

'He'd had 17 miniatures of bourbon and it was still morning,' recalls Norman, 'It's a long story. Basically, he got offended because I didn't take him seriously when he explained how he'd stop the Vietnam War. He said he'd get on the phone to Kosygin [the Russian premier at the time] and tell him that if Russia sent one more bullet to Vietnam, America would bomb Moscow. When I laughed, he went potty.'

Of present-day film legends, Norman has hit it off memorably with Steven Spielberg, Martin Scorsese, George Clooney and Sylvester Stallone – 'Who has a wonderful sense of humour and is self-deprecatory' – but has struggled to establish a rapport with, among others, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Bruce Willis. 'I interviewed Willis at the Hotel du Cap during the Cannes Film Festival. I had watched a critics' preview of his new film, Armageddon, and at the end, during the supposedly moving scene with him on an asteroid that is about to implode, everyone fell about with mirth. A lot of actors would have taken it well. Stallone would have been marvellous. But Willis was very truculent.'

At 65, Norman is past worrying about actors getting truculent with him. He is also past worrying about being saddled with a catchphrase. He can't remember saying 'And why not?' even once in 26 years, let alone repeatedly, and recalls brusquely pointing this out in a newspaper interview. 'I got a note from Rory Bremner saying, "Next time you can invent your own bloody catchphrase!" Actually, I think it's nice to have a catchphrase, and I'm grateful to Rory.'

Which brings me, neatly, and rather sycophantically, to my own gratitude to Barry, for 29 years of top-notch television. That's 26 down and at least three to go, which should add another 1000 or so films to the 11,000 he calculates he has already seen. The best of them, he reckons, is the Orson Welles masterpiece Citizen Kane. And the worst? 'I dismiss the bad ones from my mind. It's like John Barrymore said at the end of his career, when he was a drunk, and was asked on the set of some second-rate film why he couldn't remember his lines. "My dear boy," he said. "My head is full of Henry V's speech at Agincourt. There simply isn't room for any of this ****!"

You sexy thing

His role in 'The Full Monty' made him an international star, but just what is it about Robert Carlyle that makes him irresistible to women?

Interview: Hilary Bonner

Sky Box Office | Channel 51
This is a movies on-demand service. For ordering details, see pages 22-23

The Full Monty Starts Wednesday 9th

HE'S a little, sharp-featured, skinny man with over-sized ears and, through removing his trousers in a low-budget movie, he is now one of the most sought-after actors in the world. In Hollywood, they have begun to whisper his name in the same sentence as De Niro.

Glaswegian Robert Carlyle has become an international superstar thanks to The Full Monty, the biggest-grossing British film in history. The flick, about a group of down-on-their-luck Sheffield steelworkers who form a stripping troupe, cost just over £2million to make and has earned almost £200 million worldwide. It won an Oscar for Best Original Score and was nominated for three others, including Best Director for Peter Catteneo, who was also nominated in 1990 for his short film Dear Rosie.

The Full Monty's fairy tale success has transformed Carlyle's career. He is recognised wherever he goes as the film's lead stripper. He can name his price in movieland and has been bombarded with lucrative Hollywood offers.

Yet he continues to live in Glasgow with his new wife, make-up artist Anastasia Shirley, whom he met on the set of the TV series Cracker. She wants absolutely nothing to do with the glitzy world of big-time showbusiness.

'Essentially, I am quite a shy person,' he explains. 'I just don't see myself belonging in that world. I can't see myself sitting on a chat show telling anecdotes. It's not the kind of guy I am.

'My whole desire, to be honest with you, is to try to live as normal a life as possible and to try to remain in the city that I'm from with the friends that I've had for most of my life. They are my family.'

Robert Carlyle is an unusual actor with an unusual past. He was brought up by his hippy father in a succession of squats.

'My mother left home when I was four,' he recalls. 'Until then we led what would be regarded as a normal life in a normal house. Afterwards, my father took me to live in hippy communes.

'He was a painter and decorator and we went where the work was. I attended lots of different schools. In the summer the building season was in London, so I used to spend half of the summer term at school in Scotland and half in London.

'My father used to make sure that I went to school all right, but I was always being sent home for not wearing shoes, and my hair was down to my waist.

'I wore shorts and psychedelic shirts and I remember being very happy as a child. Living in communes gave you a huge extended family. I had ten mothers and 100 uncles.

'My father believed totally in the hippy way of life and when it fell apart he was devastated. So were a lot of them.'

When Robert left school at 15 he joined his father as a jobbing decorator. But six years later he was given a book token as a 21st birthday present and bought himself a copy of the play The Crucible by Arthur Miller.

'I was instantly hooked on the theatre,' he says. 'I suddenly knew what I wanted to do although I hadn't a clue how to go about it.'

He turned to the Glasgow Arts Centre to help him learn to act, and his first professional assignment was as Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer in an Arts Centre pantomime.

Now 37, he has been regarded as a big star in Scotland for years and first came to wider notice with the Ken Loach film Riff-Raff in 1991, which won the Best Film prize at the European Film Awards. There followed the role of a crazed skinhead in Cracker, with Robbie Coltrane, for which he gained rave reviews.

Before The Full Monty, his biggest exposure outside of Scotland was from the instant TV hit Hamish Macbeth, the quirky story of a highland policeman. Then came psychotic thug Begbie in the cult smash Trainspotting.

Known for being versatile and, like De Niro and Daniel Day-Lewis, for obsessive research (he spent five days sleeping rough on the streets of London when he played a homeless drifter in the film Safe), Carlyle's credits are impressive and varied.

On the big screen there was another Ken Loach picture, Carla's Song, and Priest, in which he played Linus Roach's gay lover. On TV he starred in Go Now, about a multiple sclerosis sufferer, and Looking After Jo Jo, a BBC drama in which he was a petty thief who becomes a drug dealer.

But more than anything that has gone before, it is his Full Monty role as Gaz, a man who sees stripping as a way to win access to his son, which has placed him firmly at the top of the cinema super league.

Suddenly Robert Carlyle can demand his own terms and choose whatever he wants to do. 'I think that is what every actor wants,' he says. 'Once you have a high profile you can control your own life.'

The Full Monty is, however, far from Robert's first experience of being idolised on-screen. He found himself turned into a TV heart-throb through Hamish Macbeth. An unlikely one, he feels.

Whatever he might think, women do love him, and part of the secret apparently lies with his ears.

The actor giggles. 'I don't know quite what it means,' he says. 'But I get loads of letters about my pixie ears. There must be loads of people out there with ear fetishes …'

This month's films from Sky Box Office – a movies on-demand service

This month's line-up includes the feel-good stripping smash The Full Monty, the sublimely silly comedy antics of Romy and Michele's High School Reunion, and high-octane thrills in Air Force One. Plus there's more action with 'The Muscles From Brussels', Jean-Claude Van Damme, in Maximum Risk, plenty of outrageous humour in Grosse Pointe Blank and sci-fi spills and chills in Event Horizon.

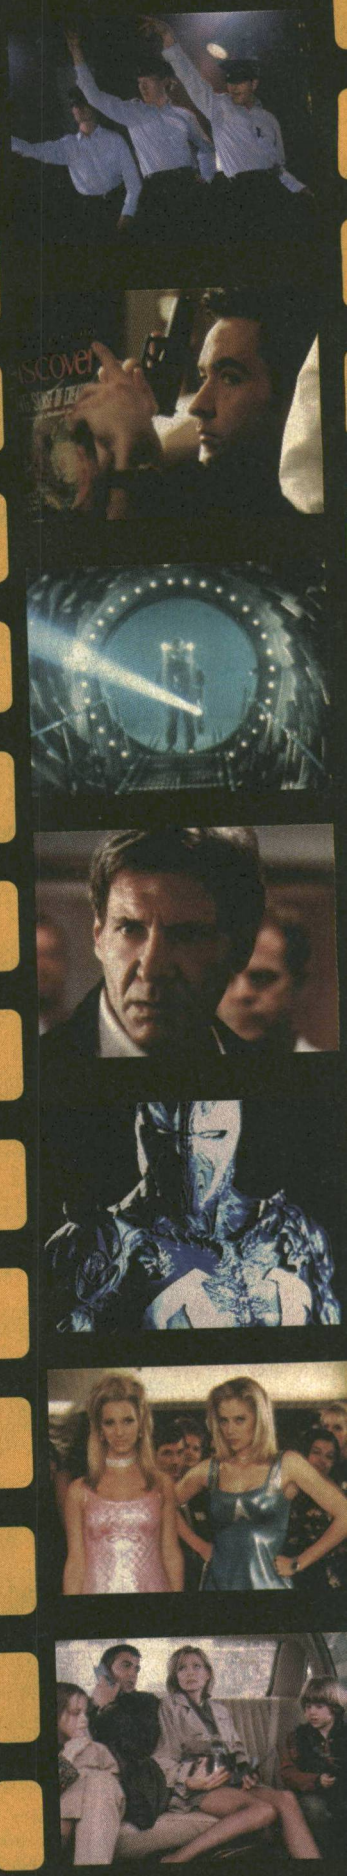
CABLE & WIRELESS



The Full Monty (Sky 15, L, M, S)
This, the unlikely worldwide smash hit about a group of unemployed men who turn to stripping to make ends meet, is supreme feel-good fare. Robert Carlyle is hot stuff as the leader of a group of down-on-their luck former steel workers who aim to become Sheffield's answer to The Chippendales. By turns comic, poignant and irresistibly rousing. Directed by Peter Cattaneo.

Grosse Pointe Blank (Sky 15, L, V)
John Cusack stars in this darkly hilarious cult comedy about a professional assassin's return to his sleepy home town to carry out a murder – and drop in on his high school reunion! Minnie Driver provides the love interest as the girl he stood up at the prom ten years earlier. Also starring Dan Aykroyd, Joan Cusack. Directed by George Armitage.

Event Horizon (Sky 18, V)
This special-effects fuelled science fiction nerve-jangler plays like an old dark house movie in space. A spaceship, which has been missing for seven years, reappears with the crew dead and signs of a mysterious presence on board. The real spooky goings-on begin when a craft containing a team of scientists is sent out to investigate. Starring Laurence Fishburne. Directed by Paul Anderson.

Air Force One (Sky 15, L, V)
In this high-octane, high-altitude thriller, the US President, played by Harrison Ford, is trapped on board a hijacked plane. Russian communist radicals (led by the reliably villainous Gary Oldman) take command of the presidential aircraft, Air Force One, and threaten to kill one hostage every half-hour unless their leader is released. Also starring Glenn Close. Directed by Wolfgang Petersen.

Spawn (Sky 12)
Stunning effects showcase this dark and spectacular tale of a superhero trapped between the forces of good and evil. Spawn (Michael Jai White) is a former government assassin burned to death and allowed by the Devil to return to Earth for one last visit to his wife. But he soon finds himself pitted against Satan's representative on Earth (John Leguizamo). Directed by Mark Dippe.

Romy & Michele's High School Reunion (Sky 15, L)
Friends star Lisa Kudrow teams up with Oscar-winner Mira Sorvino for this adorably kooky comedy. They play a pair of fun-loving best-friend misfits who invent new lives for themselves in a hilarious attempt to impress the in-crowd at their school reunion. Directed by David Mirkin.

One Fine Day (Sky PG)
Michelle Pfeiffer and George Clooney fall for one another in this delightful romantic comedy about a pair of mismatched New York professionals. Architect and single parent Pfeiffer and swaggering newspaper columnist Clooney are hurled together by chance for one hectic day, at the end of which they may find true love. Also starring Charles Durning, Mae Whitman. Directed by Michael Hoffman.

Maximum Risk (Sky 18, V)
Fans of Jean-Claude Van Damme will not be disappointed by this do-or-die action thriller which finds him at his energetic and acrobatic best. 'The Muscles From Brussels' plays a retired French soldier who journeys to New York to solve the murder of the twin brother he never knew existed. Adopting his dead sibling's identity, he descends into a world of unimaginable dangers. Directed by Ringo Lam.

Family Plan (Sky PG)
The Naked Gun star Leslie Nielsen heads the cast of this zany laugh-a-thon about a group of orphans who wage a war against a greedy developer who wants to turn their summer camp into a luxury holiday resort. Nielsen is hilarious as the clueless camp counsellor who leads the kids in a rebellion against the smarmy developer. Directed by Fred Gerber.

Conspiracy Theory (Sky 15, V)
Two of the sexiest people alive in one movie! That's what you get with this gripping thriller, as Mel Gibson teams up with Julia Roberts. Gibson is a paranoid taxi driver whose conspiracy theories seem to have got someone in the government more than a little worried, while Roberts is the sceptical lawyer who realises he could be telling the truth. Directed by Richard Donner.

Turbo: A Power Rangers Movie (Sky PG, V)
Those high-kicking family favourites The Power Rangers face their deadliest enemy yet in the form of Divatox, an evil creature who's determined to take control of the whole galaxy. Starring Jason David Frank, Johnny Yong Bosch, Nakia Burrise, Catherine Sutherland. Directed by David Winning.

The Devil's Own (Sky 15, L, V, M)
Harrison Ford and Brad Pitt star in a tense, edge-of-the-seat thriller about an Irish terrorist at large in the USA. Ford plays Tom O'Meara, a New York City police officer who takes in an Irish house guest called Rory Devaney (Pitt). O'Meara begins to bond with the young man, completely unaware that he has a dark, violent past. Directed by Alan J Pakula.

Liar Liar (Sky 12, L)
Jim Carrey is in peak comic fitness in this manic and hugely popular farce. He plays Fletcher Reede, a workaholic lawyer who cannot lie – thanks to his neglected son making a birthday wish that Reede tell nothing but the truth for 24 hours. Also Starring Maura Tierney, Justin Cooper, Jennifer Tilly. Directed by Tom Shadyac.

Speed 2: Cruise Control (Sky PG, V)
Sandra Bullock is back for another suspenseful adventure – this time she's stranded on a cruise liner that's out of control. Luckily, her hunky new boyfriend (Jason Patric) is a SWAT team officer. But can he save them from certain doom at the hands of psychopath Willem Dafoe? Directed by Jan De Bont.

GONE WITH THE WIND –AS YOU'VE NEVER SEEN IT!

FANS of Gone with the Wind will be delighted that this much-loved romantic masterpiece can be enjoyed in its restored format for the first time on the small screen – and only on TNT Classic Movies.

This legendary film recently underwent a loving restoration befitting such a milestone in cinematic history. Using state-of-the-art transfer techniques, a team of experts worked painstakingly on the negative to remove the scratches and blemishes it had accumulated over the years.

The contrast between the robust earth tones of the fields and the rich, deep colours of Vivien Leigh's gorgeous gowns, the luxuriously embellished sets, and such elegant camerawork as the swoop down a staircase that introduces the dashing Clark Gable, can now be enjoyed afresh. Likewise, Max Steiner's score has never sounded more impressive than here, in its crisp, digitally remastered presentation.

Almost 60 years after Gone with the Wind first graced the world's cinema screens, this epic Technicolor love letter to the American South of the Civil War, which was adapted from Margaret Mitchell's novel, remains a hugely popular classic.

It was an entire year in the making, and producer David O Selznick was rewarded with a selection of fine portrayals from his huge cast, with the performances of Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh as star-crossed lovers Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara, crackling with charisma. The film scooped 10 Oscars, including best picture, best actress for Vivien Leigh, and best director for Victor Fleming.

Lavish and legendary, Gone with the Wind always rewards repeated viewings.

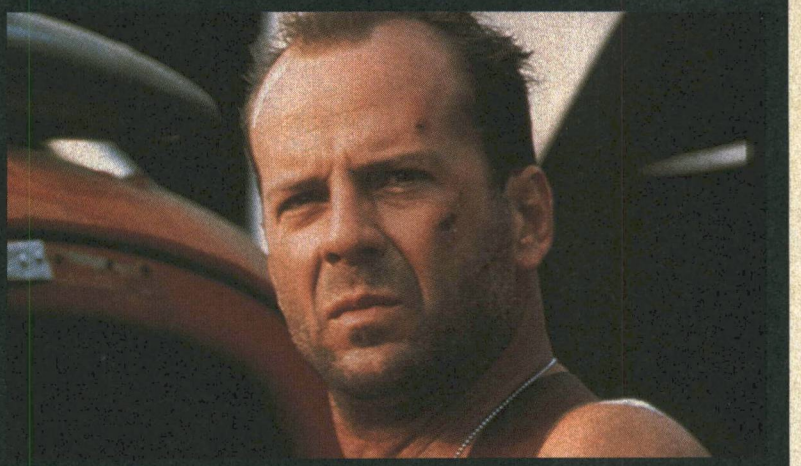
SCREEN TRENDS

While Ralph Fiennes and Kenneth Branagh may be bright British sparks, Hollywood's hunks are still big box office. IVAN WATERMAN makes way for who's rippling in your direction in September



INDEPENDENCE DAY

Dashing Will Smith came of age alongside Tommy Lee Jones in Men in Black. But, before that, he had audiences cheering as he blasted those evil aliens back to their galaxy in the name of democracy, decency and his next pay cheque in the blockbusting destruction festival Independence Day. Bill Pullman, as a fresh-faced president, did the rest. Sorry, forgot about wacky pilot Randy Quaid's hilarious kamikaze exit from the movie.
SKY PREMIER SUNDAY 13TH

THE BIG SLEEP

Robert Mitchum was magnificent as hard-boiled private eye Philip Marlowe in Michael Winner's otherwise average 1978 version of the Raymond Chandler classic The Big Sleep. But nobody could touch Humphrey Bogart's portrayal of the cool, enigmatic sleuth in the grubby trench coat, cigarette forever dangling from his lips, giving Lauren Bacall the once over in the original 1946 adaptation. He personified the guy every woman wanted to have around when the going got tough.
TNT CLASSIC MOVIES MONDAY 7TH

HOLLYWOOD HALL OF FAME: PAUL NEWMAN

In something of a mini-Paul Newman season, catch him first in The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean, John Huston's offbeat Western tale of the fabled hanging judge from Texas. There's a great supporting cast that includes Ava Gardner, Roddy McDowall, and a pre-Dallas Victoria Principal. Stick around to see Mr Newman with his wife, actress Joanne Woodward, in tow in The Drowning Pool, a neat crime thriller in which our hero is lured into a trap by a blackmailer.
SKY CINEMA THURSDAY 24TH

DIE HARD

Bruce Willis isn't everyone's idea of dynamite. But you have to hand it to the guy. When he comes out blazing away as cop John McClane in Die Hard, the body count just goes off the meter! The first film also brought Hollywood stardom for our own Alan Rickman, who played the chief bad guy. And Willis is back just 24 hours later tackling terrorists led by Franco Nero in Die Hard 2: Die Harder.
SKY MOVIES SCREEN 1 TUESDAY 1ST

GONE WITH THE WIND

We know Clark Gable really gave a damn. He would have re-written the script to spend another day in the arms of Vivien Leigh. So much has been written about Gable and Leigh from this adaptation of Margaret Mitchell's American Civil War saga. But nobody has ever been able to fill their shoes in a sequel to the incredible Victor Fleming-directed 1939 epic.

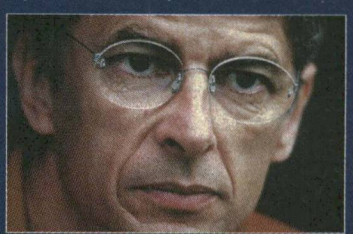
MATCH OF THE MONTH

Arsenal v Manchester United

Sky Sports 1 Sunday 20th 3.00pm – Live



Arsenal coach Arsène Wenger will show Manchester United no charity when they meet again

ARSENE WENGER insists that Arsenal's 3-0 Charity Shield win over Manchester United will not influence the outcome of their first Premiership encounter this season.

But there is no doubt that Arsenal's victory has already proved that they have the strongest squad in the country.

Wenger said: 'Manchester United in the Premiership will be a completely different prospect to the Charity Shield. I can see their determination to come back this season and I rate them alongside Chelsea and Liverpool as possibly the biggest threats.

'But beating them in the Charity Shield, after only two days of training together since the World Cup, will give us confidence in our ability to carry on from last season and that our team play is still together.

The Arsenal boss sums up: 'This game comes too early in the season to determine the title, but we know it is always one of our biggest games of the season for us, the media and our supporters.'

Swede surrender? Michael Owen, here celebrating with David Beckham, hopes to score again when England meet Sweden in Stockholm in an all-important encounter

ALL EYES ON OWEN

Boy wonder Michael Owen will be raring to go when England play Sweden in their crunch opening European Championship qualifier

Sweden v England
Sky Sports 2 Saturday 5th
4.30pm – Live

MICHAEL OWEN is already being hailed as the footballer of the millennium – the year when England hope to play in the European Championship finals. As the country's fans prepare to see him back in an England shirt, the Liverpool striker is already a household name at 18 and on his way to becoming a national icon. So when England face Sweden in their opening European Championship qualifier on September 5, a match shown live on Sky, all eyes will on the Rasunda Stadium in Stockholm. England used to think there would never be another Gary Lineker. No one who could combine pace, lethal finishing and perfect temperament on the pitch with good looks, charm and diplomacy off it.
But, after his World Cup performances, Owen seems to fit the bill. His stunning individual goal in France, against Argentina, in which he ran all the way from the half-way line before shooting home, proved his class.
Considering the pressure that he has to deal with, Owen is still focused but admits that it can make him uncomfortable. He said: 'The attention is not fair on my team-mates, for Liverpool or England, and I am not going to fall into the trap of thinking I can win games on my own. I couldn't be here without my team-mates.
'I know I will get more attention this season, on and off the pitch, and it will be more difficult. But I am still improving as a player, so maybe these defenders still won't be able to stop me.
'I proved in France that I can play at the highest level, but I am still improving. Every player can improve. I have never played a perfect game in my life, so I keep on working at things in training and hope that it pays off at the weekend.
'We believe strongly at Liverpool this season that we can win the title and that, and qualifying for the European Championship finals with England, are my main aims.'
To qualify for the finals, staged in Holland and Belgium in the year 2000, England will have to overcome Sweden, Bulgaria, Luxembourg and Poland. And if they get there, then Owen's popularity will soar again.
The teenager's success and his good looks have already made him one of the hottest properties in the world. Owen has turned down £35m worth of endorsements, including knocking back some of the world's top brand names, and he has been inundated with offers from companies wanting the youngster to head their advertising campaigns. So far, nearly all have been turned down to allow Owen to concentrate on his football. The striker said: 'I will not allow myself to be dragged around for commercial reasons. What I want to do is concentrate on what I get paid to do, which is to play football for Liverpool and, hopefully, for England.'
It seems that Owen has the will, as well as the means, to be the player of the millennium.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT OWEN:

Michael Owen's performances in France have won him worldwide praise.
GARY LINEKER SAID: 'Michael has everything a striker needs to be successful and is infinitely more talented than I was at that age.'
KENNY DALGLISH: 'Michael's pace is often admired, but it's the intelligence of his running that makes him special.'
PELE: 'Owen was one of the most exciting players to emerge from the last World Cup. He is the great hope for the future of English football.'
JUST FONTAINE who scored a record 13 goals for France in the 1958 World Cup finals, said: 'I think Owen will probably have to wait another three years before he reaches his highest level, and that is frightening. Let's not forget he is four years younger than Ronaldo.'
PAUL INCE : 'For me he is the best – better than Ronaldo.'

MY MOST MEMORABLE GAME

MARTIN TYLER

Sky Sports

Senior Commentator

Liverpool 4 Newcastle 3

3 April 1996

I WAS very fortunate to have commentated on this game. It was moved from Monday to Wednesday and had it not been moved I would not have covered it.
We all go to matches hoping to see a game like this. Robbie Fowler scored for Liverpool in the second minute. Les Ferdinand and David Ginola put Newcastle ahead and Liverpool were not in front again until Stan Collymore scored to win the game in the last minute. It summed up all that was good about Newcastle and all that made them vulnerable when it came to winning trophies.
They had a chance to win a title for the first time in 70 years and had they won this game, I think they would have been champions. Kevin Keegan was distraught afterwards. For the commentator the only skill was to keep up with all the action. It is a long drive home from Liverpool to Surrey for me but I just floated along. It was a wonderful game. We all stopped at a pub on the way back to talk about it, which is something we rarely do.

HANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

That Thing You Do!, the warmly nostalgic directorial debut of Tom Hanks, chronicles the brief but successful career of a fictional Sixties pop band called The Wonders. Hanks, who appears as the group's manager, coaxes affable performances from his young cast and dresses the movie with affectionately detailed period panache.

OVERMARS ATTACKS!

This month's clash between Chelsea and Arsenal at Stamford Bridge promises to be a passionately fought and truly international spectacle. The Blues have boosted their Premiership campaign with European signings that include Marcel Desailly from France, Italian Pierluigi Casiraghi and Spaniard Alberto Ferrer. And the Gunners aren't exactly short of continental class either, with Dutch midfielder Marc Overmars in their ranks and the up-front partnership of his compatriot Dennis Bergkamp and Frenchman Nicolas Anelka.

SPORT

Tennis: US Open – LIVE
Sky Sports 2 4.00pm, 12.30am

Two live slots from Flushing Meadow, New York, as we follow the progress of Greg Rusedski and Tim Henman in the last of the season's Grand Slam tournaments. Greg was runner-up last year to Pat Rafter, but this year has suffered from injury and is unlikely to repeat that feat again. Meanwhile, Tim Henman's appearance in the final of the Mercedes Cup last month may spur him on to greater things here. It's only the second day of the tournament, but we should be able to follow British action for quite a while to come.

The young person's guide to what's on this month

ROCK ON, ROCKY

Pity poor Rocky the dodo. Not only do people think he's extinct, but he also has to live with Elvis – a messy slob of a penguin who likes to imitate the king of rock 'n' roll. And these are just two of the characters in a brand-new 'claymation' series set on an island full of weird and wacky animals. Other 'model' residents include Bjorn the Puffin, Douglas the Walrus, and Tantra – a punk cormorant with a pierced beak!

EH-OH!

Younger viewers' antennae will be lighting up this month as Teletubbies join Nickelodeon. Every weekday Tinky Winky, Dipsy, La La and Po will be bouncing through Teletubby land among daffodils and rabbits, and keeping their tummies full with Tubby custard. Harmless fun, specially for the little-uns. So why are us big kids all hooked on it, too?

Soon they're transported into a strange land where two powerful kingdoms are about to go to war. It's up to the kids to pull the plug on all the fighting ... and save their own lives!

REGULAR GUY

We know him as the mischievous middle son Randy in Home Improvement, but there's more to Jonathan Taylor Thomas than that.The 16-year-old actor (he's 17 on 8 September) loves soccer and fly fishing and wants to go on to study anthropology. Jonathan has been in Home Improvement since he was nine, but has managed to combine acting and studying successfully. With his acting career taking off (he won an award for his part as the voice of the young Simba in The Lion King), Jonathan gets all sorts of offers and has his sights set on eventually directing movies. But for the next two years he plans to focus on school. So does he get the star treatment from his pals at school? 'Nah, they're used to it. I'm just a regular guy.'

Costa Del Nosh
Starts Monday 7th, 12.30pm

Costa living

It's Viva España for the Nosh Brothers as they head for the sunny shores of the Costa Del Sol for a new 13-part series discovering the tastes of southern Spain.

In Costa Del Nosh, Mick and Nick prove there's much more to Spanish cuisine than paella and sangria. From the fish markets of Estapona to the cheese-making town of Ronda, they reveal a feast of flavours to tempt the tastebuds.

Along the way, the brothers will be meeting the locals, trying their feet at Flamenco dancing and even having a go at bullfighting.

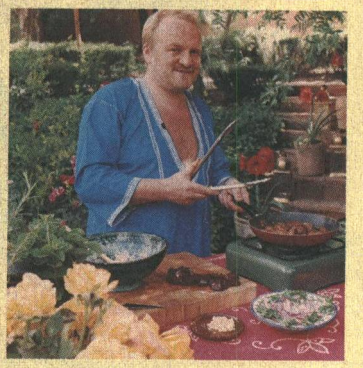
A taste of Morocco



The magical city of Marrakech is the backdrop for the first episode of Antony's Morocco, as Antony Worral Thompson and his wife, Jay, explore the riot of flavours and fragrances to be found in the north African country.

Tabbouleh with harissa dressing, honey-dipped pastry stuffed with fig, and fish couscous with charmoula are among the dishes on the menu – all prepared by Antony with ingredients from local markets.

In the series, Antony and Jay take you on a culinary tour of the country, visiting the sleepy Atlantic port of Essaouira – an absolute paradise for seafood lovers – as well as villages in the remote Atlas Mountains, where Berber tribesfolk use solar power to cook their food. To whet your appetite, here's an unusual salad to try ...

Football League – LIVE
Sky Sports 2 7.30pm

One of the disappointments for neutral footy fans last season was the inability of Peter Reid's Sunderland to climb out of the Nationwide League. Still, it means that tonight, from the Stadium of Light, we can watch Reid's team take on the newly promoted Bristol City. Sunderland will still have Lee Clark pulling the strings from midfield and a young team full of exciting potential. While City have spent lavishly on strikers such as Ade Akinbiyi and are hoping for quick returns from their investments.

TURN ON AND TUNE INTO THE MONTH'S BEST MUSIC ON CABLE

Motown's Ultimate Collection features tracks by the original girl band, Diana Ross and The Supremes.

WIN! MOTOWN CDS

To mark VH1's Soul Hits Weekend and the 40th anniversary of Motown, we're giving you the chance to win an exclusive 11 CD box set of Motown's Ultimate Collections. The set features greatest hits from some of the biggest Motown stars ever, including Diana Ross, The Four Tops, Lionel Richie, Smokey Robinson and Stevie Wonder. For four lucky runners-up, there's a copy of the Motown 40 Forever album, with tracks from the likes of Jimmy Ruffin, The Jackson Five, Martha Reeves and Marvin Gaye, as well as more modern Motown stars including Shanice, Boyz II Men and DeBarge.

But don't worry if you miss out on the prizes – just watch VH1's Soul Hits Weekend on 12-13 September for the best in soul and Motown music from the last 40 years. The weekend includes a Ten of the Best on Motown and two concerts recorded by the greatest artists to come out of Memphis's legendary Stax Studios.

TO ENTER, JUST ANSWER THIS QUESTION: WHICH MOTOWN STAR HAD A BRITISH NUMBER ONE WITH I HEARD IT THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE?

Send your answer on a postcard to Cable Guide/VH1 Motown Competition, 172 Tottenham Court Road, London W1P 0JJ to reach us by 30 September. The first five correct entries drawn at random win. Usual rules apply.

VIDEO TASTIES

Since Queen set the trend with Bohemian Rhapsody, it's become unthinkable for any band to aim for chart success without a video. Over the years, videos have gone from the sublime (Godley & Creme's Cry) to the downright cheesy (Club Tropicana by Wham!). The pick of the best can be seen on VH1's A-Z weekend (starts Saturday 5th). Here are five of our favourites:

LOUD'S TOP 5 MUSIC VIDEOS

Ashes to Ashes – David Bowie A striking psychedelic treat accompanying perhaps the last decent record he made.

Once in a Lifetime – Talking Heads David Byrne at the height of his 'nerdy' phase looking like a demented marionette. To great effect.

Thriller – Michael Jackson Watch Jacko change into a hideous monster. The video's pretty good too.

Sledgehammer - Peter Gabriel A work of animated art that almost eclipses the song itself.

In Between Days (Without You) – The Cure The much-copied camera-on-a-rope video featuring brightly coloured socks. Doubtfully theirs.

Ones to Watch ... Exclusive! Dannii Minogue has joined the Spice Girls. Well, not exactly, she hasn't dyed her hair ginger and teamed up with Scary, Posh, Baby and Sporty, she's actually following in the majestic footsteps of Leslie Ash, Melinda Messenger and Jessica Whittaker to become the latest presenter of VH1's raunchy video show, Spice (Saturday 5th, Sunday 6th) ... If VH1's A-Z weekend whetted your appetite for top-notch music videos, make a note in your diary for the MTV Video Music Awards (Thursday 10th), which comes live from Los Angeles and features a live performance from nine-times-nominated Madonna ... Time to don the feather boa and glitter suit and get in Seventies mood for the Marc Bolan Tribute Night (VH1, Wednesday 30th), which marks the 51st anniversary of the glam rock star's birth.

Cable titans The X-Files and ER have notched up a whopping 16 nominations each, with both shows vying for gongs in the categories for best drama series, best actor in a drama series (David Duchovny vs Anthony Edwards) and best actress in a drama series (Gillian Anderson against Julianna Margulies).

THE FAMILY WAY

The rest of the world may be hurtling towards the new millennium, but the Bradys, that freaky family from Seventies sitcom land, are still stuck in their own self-contained corner of the decade that fashion forgot. In A Very Brady Sequel, the second spoof of the affectionately remembered polyester-clad TV comedy, the family is duped by a conman claiming to be the long-lost first husband of Carol (Shelley Long).

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

The holders Chelsea and the domestic cup winners from the 14 strongest associations automatically qualify for today's first round of the European Cup Winners' Cup. They are also joined by the remaining 17 domestic cup winners who took part in the qualifying phases in August. The Blues will no doubt fight a fierce campaign to retain the title.

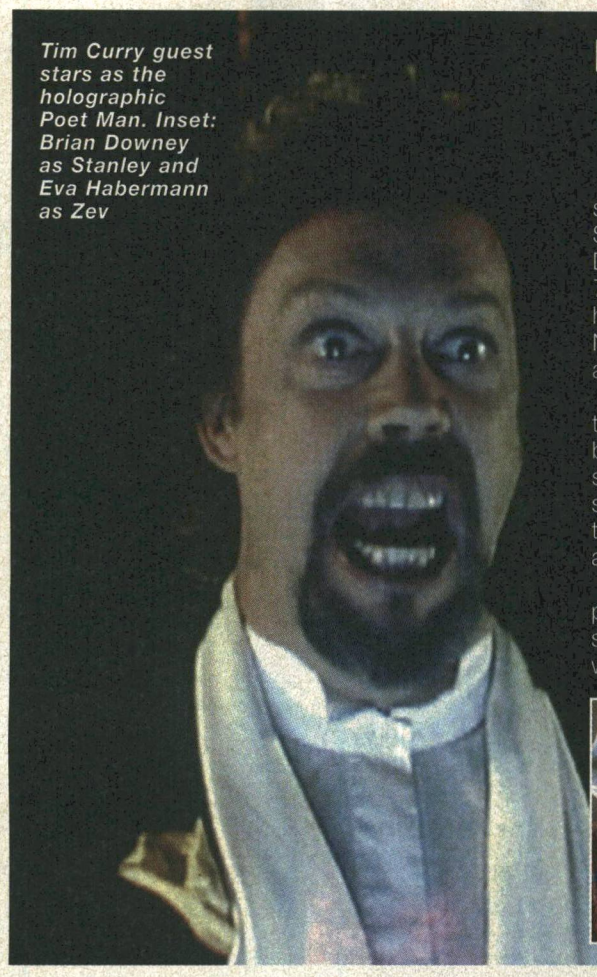
YOUR GUIDE TO OUT-OF-THIS-WORLD SHOWS ON CABLE. WORDS: PATRICK HOLM



Tim Curry guest stars as the holographic Poet Man. Inset: Brian Downey as Stanley and Eva Habermann as Zev

INTO THE DARK ZONE

'WE call it the evil twin of Star Trek. It's Nineties nihilism rather than Sixties self-righteousness and utopianism.' So says executive producer Paul Donovan of his cult series Lexx: The Dark Zone, which follows highly successful showings in North America and Germany with a run on the Sci-Fi Channel.

Lexx tells the tale of a group of three-and-a-half misfits (the half being just a head) who steal a ship the size of Manhattan. The ship is the most powerful force in the two universes – the light zone and the dark zone.

'Each lead character has a problem. One of them is a former security guard, looking for a planet with undiscriminating females. We have a sleek female looking for a man, but not the security guard. The other lead male, who's been dead for 2000 years, is looking to be alive again. The half character who's a robot head, and a kind of good head, is in love with the lead female. He's very single minded,' Donovan explains.

Lexx, which comprises eight one-hour episodes, has been described as 'Beavis and Butt-head taking over the Death Star'.

The crew of the ship are joined by an assortment of guest stars. There's macho he-man rebel, Thodin, played by Barry Bostwick; Tim Curry as the holographic librarian Poet Man; Blade Runner's Rutger Hauer as Bog, brewer of a mysterious elixir for the diseased inhabitants of a planet; and Malcolm McDowell as Yottskry, a cleric with a split personality whose two sides fight it out. All were attracted by the weirdness of the project, which Hauer sums up as 'beautiful, weird, exotic, strange, fantastic ... it goes to very beautiful, daring extremes.' Sci-Fi Channel, Sundays from 13th, 9.00pm

TIME MACHINE

QUANTUM LEAP

97 episodes, 1989
Starring: Scott Bakula (Doctor Samuel Becket), Dean Stockwell (Rear Admiral Albert Calavicci). Guest appearances: Teri Hatcher (Donna Eleese), Terry Copley (Dixie), Michael Madsen (Blue), Michelle Joyner (Sister Angela)

A research project goes badly wrong, a scientist experiments on himself ... staple ingredients in many SF shows, but few ever quite had the style of Quantum Leap. Scott Bakula starred as Sam Becket, lost in time after trying out his new Quantum Leap accelerator on himself. Sam kept finding himself in the bodies of other people, always at a critical point in their life. If he helped them make the right choice, lives were saved, or at least significantly altered. The problem was, he had no idea who he was going to 'leap' into, or when. Sam was given some help during his travels through time by Admiral Al Calavicci (Dean Stockwell), a cigar-smoking womaniser who masked his concern for Sam with wisecracks. Al was aided by Ziggy, the hybrid computer that Sam invented. Quantum Leap tackled serious issues, including race, female equality and child abuse. It was also unusual for having a final episode that, while not giving all the answers, certainly very strongly hinted Who was guiding Sam's feet ... Sci-Fi Channel, Weekdays 3.00pm, 8.00pm Weekends 8.00pm

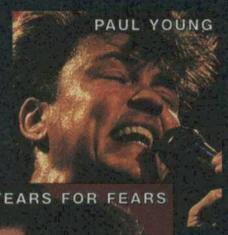
SWEET DREAMS ARE MADE OF THIS



95 GREAT HITS IN ONE FANTASTIC COLLECTION

If you blinked you'd miss it. In the early 80s, every week there was something new. The pace was frantic and being different was the name of the game. There was the Ska sound of the Specials, the swashbuckling Adam and the Ants and the infectious rockabilly of the Stray Cats. Then, we'd be moved by Bonnie Tyler with Total Eclipse Of The Heart or seduced by the New Romantics like Spandau Ballet with True. We've brought all these sounds together, and more, in one unbeatable Collection. Five hours of the very best tracks from a time when style was everything.

Tennis – US Open
Sky Sports 2 3.00pm

There have been two weeks of almost constant action from Flushing Meadow and finally the year's last Grand Slam has finished. The men's final was the climax yesterday, but it would've been a little late for some of us, so here is a perfect chance to see the highlights. Last year Greg Rusedski's appearance in this match against Australian Patrick Rafter brought British tennis into the spotlight, but this year the form of Pete Sampras and the return of Andre Agassi seems to suggest that at least one American will be contesting his home final.

Fantasy art at its most exciting!

DRAGON!

by award-winning fantasy artist Michael Whelan

The unleashed fury of the most legendary and mystical creature in the world of the imagination. Captured as never before in art by the brilliant artist whose work has won him eleven Hugo Awards and three World Fantasy Awards.

The mighty Dragon is accented with sterling silver, then selectively hand-painted to achieve a golden glow. The fireball in its claw is faceted lead crystal, ablaze with the classic "Aurora Borealis" lustre. And the sculpted base is cast in lead crystal, with holographic highlights.

Issued in a Collector's Edition. Only £145, payable in monthly instalments.

SPORT

Friday Night Football – LIVE
Sky Sports 2 7.00pm

Both Walsall and Notts County have a belief that life in the Nationwide Division Two is not for them. The West Midlanders have built the Bescot Stadium as proof that they can live among the rarefied atmosphere of near neighbours Wolves and West Brom. New boss Ray Graydon (himself a local favourite with Aston Villa) will push for promotion. County, however, can still taste the champagne from the celebrations of last season's magnificent ascent from Division Three and have the capability to rise further.

ANGEL FACE

Director Nora Ephron certainly knows a thing or two about making cockle-warming comedies, having been the woman behind the lens of the sweetly romantic classic Sleepless in Seattle. In Michael she presses all the right feel-good buttons again. John Travolta turns on his roguish charm as the angel with dirty habits (including chain-smoking and drooling cereal down his chin) who plays cupid with tabloid reporters William Hurt and Andie MacDowell.

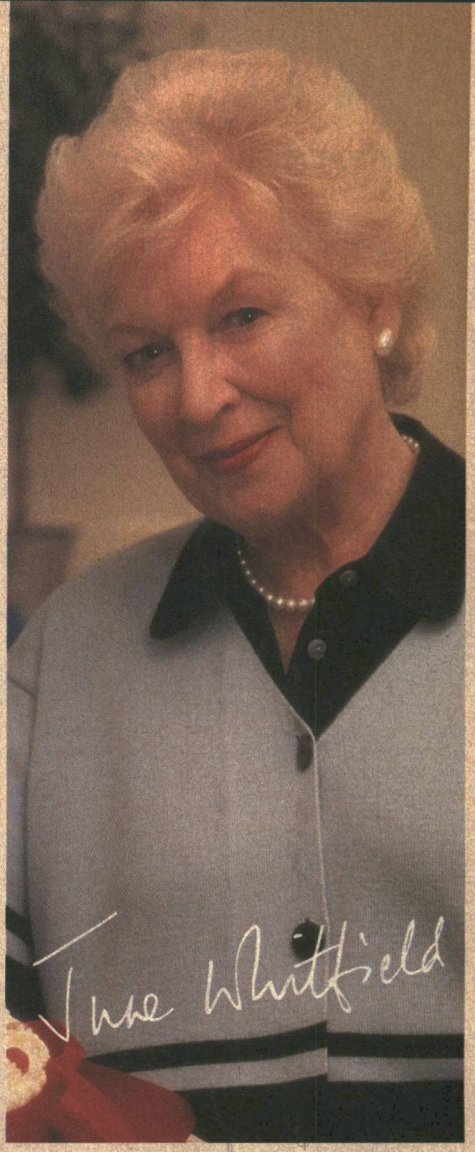
Aged 50-80?

"Here's the ideal low-cost insurance policy – your acceptance is guaranteed!"



It's very reassuring to know that you have a valuable life insurance policy to give you and your loved ones protection for the future. You'd be surprised how many people aged over 50 have no cover, or too little.

It's so easy to find yourself underinsured, explains June Whitfield. Maybe you have policies that have lost their value through inflation. Perhaps you had cover supplied by an employer but it ceased when you retired. Or perhaps you have never enjoyed the benefits of life insurance.

Now with the Sun Life Guaranteed Over 50 Plan you can secure a cash sum payable to your partner, family or friends to help provide for funeral expenses – or any other purpose you wish.

No medical

You are guaranteed life cover with this Plan – without a medical examination. Without answering any health questions. Without having to see a doctor. Provided you are aged between 50 and 80, you can apply for anything up to the very maximum cover available and it will be yours. And that cover is yours for life, if you wish. Post the coupon or phone free for full details and your personal quotation without obligation.

Easily affordable from £6 a month

You can obtain this valuable protection from as little as £6 a month – equivalent to 20p a day. Moreover, your payments are guaranteed never to increase however long you live or whatever your state of health in the future.

As an added bonus, your death benefit will be trebled if you are killed as a result of an accident (or die within three months from injuries sustained in one) while travelling in a private car or as a fare-paying passenger by road, rail, sea or air anywhere in the world. And this valuable accident cover commences immediately you are accepted for the Plan.

The Sun Life Guaranteed Over 50 Plan is designed to provide protection for the whole of your life. However, you may cancel your cover at any time in the future with no questions asked.

Your first month FREE

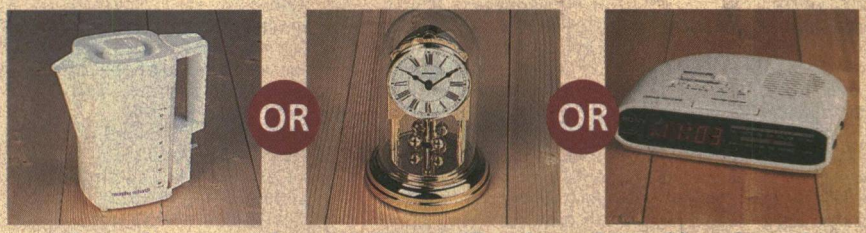
With the Guaranteed Over 50 Plan you can choose up to seven units of cover. Each unit of cover costs £6, but if you buy more than one you receive a discount on subsequent units.

Whatever level of cover you choose, your first month is free. Reply now and look forward to lifelong protection and peace of mind with the Sun Life Guaranteed Over 50 Plan.

Your choice of FREE gift to welcome you as a policyholder

You'll receive one of three wonderful gifts when you begin your Guaranteed Over 50 Plan. Choose between a superb Sony Alarm Clock Radio, an efficient Jug Kettle or a stylish Anniversary Clock. You'll also receive a smart Quartz Travel Alarm Clock just for filling in the coupon! So don't delay – reply today!

A choice of free gift when you join



When you take out the Guaranteed Over 50 Plan, we will send your choice of free gift to welcome you as a policyholder: either an efficient Jug Kettle, an Anniversary Clock or a Sony Alarm Clock Radio.

IN LOVE AS IN SPORT

A stirring and irresistibly soft-centred romantic comedy of huge acclaim, Jerry Maguire profits from what is perhaps Tom Cruise's sweetest performance. He confidently conjures up plenty of laughs as well as an affecting poignancy as the slick sports agent of the title who is fired after writing an impassioned memo that criticises his company's ruthlessness. Director Cameron Crowe proceeds to develop the relationship between Maguire and an office assisstant, Dorothy (played by Renee Zellweger), who foolhardily goes into business with him. The film also gets a jolt of sassy comic juice from Cuba Gooding Jr, who deservedly scooped a Best Supporting Actor Oscar for his portrayal of Cruise's remaining client, Rod Tidwell, a brash and difficult American football player obsessed with making a fortune.

WHEEL MEET AGAIN

Around 200 riders lock handlebars this month for another gruelling European competition, the last major race of the cycling season. The 53rd Vuelta a Espana, or Tour of Spain, may lack the visibility, and has thankfully so far managed to steer clear of the controversy, of its famous Continental cousin, the Tour de France (which was tainted by a drugs scandal in July that resulted in the expulsion of the Festina team), but, as a test of skill and raw, brute staying power, it is every bit as tough. The tour, which started on the 5th in the eastern Spanish port of Valencia, climaxes 3762 saddlesore kilometres later in Madrid on the 27th. Last year's runner-up, Spaniard Fernando Escartin (above), is hungry for a victory and will receive enthusiastic support from his home crowd, but he'll need to out-sprint arch rival Alex Zülle of Switzerland.

WHALE COMEBACK

Situated off the north coast of Australia is a secret place known only to a select group of scientists. The location, in the Indian Ocean, is the perfect environment for humpback whales to live and breed away from the destructive impulses of humanity. Among those who know of the location are Curt and Mitch Jenner, scientists who work aboard the Whale Song, a vessel belonging to the Australian Centre for Whale Research. Though now designated an endangered species, the humpback has suffered greatly at the hands of man – up to 97 per cent of the population had been destroyed by the time the last harpoon was fired. The Jenners believe there are around 5000 of these majestic creatures living in the Indian Ocean today, though they estimate that the population will treble over the next decade.

Marathon – LIVE
Eurosport 9.30am

The Half Marathon World Championships have traditionally been held in Europe and this year we're off to Zürich, Switzerland, for a quick jog around the Greifensee Lake. It's the eighth time the event has been held, and the African nations always seem to dominate it. Last year in Kosice, Slovakia, Kenya took the first three places in the men's race and also won the women's event. That meant the Kenyans easily won the men's team title and Romania somehow managed to push the Kenyan women into second place in their team competition.

Monday Night Football – LIVE
Sky Sports 1 7.00pm

The days of West Ham United being a top-flight soft touch are long gone. In Trevor Brooking's day, the Hammers played lovely football, but ran out of steam and could never match their opponents for strength. Nowadays, Harry Redknapp has blended the skill of men like Eyal Berkovic with the steel of Frank Lampard. Tonight the East Enders take on Southampton in a match that both teams will see as a likely victory. The Saints are as well organised as any team in the Premiership and have retained Matt Le Tissier's skills in their game plan.

Tennis: Compaq Grand Slam Cup – LIVE Sky Sports 2 1.00pm
This end-of-season event pits together the eight men with the best Grand Slam records of the year. Last year Greg Rusedski and Tim Henman both made the event (although Henman only as a last-minute replacement for just one match) to provide some British interest in this event for the first time in its history. Both players would like to be back to challenge Pete Sampras for the title. The American beat Pat Rafter in straight sets in the final and, after another convincing Wimbledon victory, will probably start as favourite again.

Season five of 'The X-Files' – 'breathtaking', 'hilarious' and 'emotional'

FILE UNDER X-CELLENT!
AS A compulsive fan of The X-Files I would just like to thank Sky One for their recent broadcasting of the latest series. I think season five has been as breathtaking as ever, from the hilarious vampire episode, Bad Blood, to the emotional and dramatic season finale, The End. I am eagerly awaiting The X-Files movie, and was jumping up and down in my chair when the trailer was shown at the end of the last episode. The passionate yet platonic relationship between Mulder and Scully has developed brilliantly into an absorbing and totally enthralling story strand. To anyone who feels the show has run its course, I would like to say that, although the series is admittedly very different from its first season, the acting, writing and characters are becoming greater with every episode. Long may it continue!

Jennifer Brewin (aged 14)

● Jennifer, you're a true X-phile. Congratulations! You've won our £5 prize.

INVASIVE VOICES?
MY FAMILY and I had just arrived at the end of the moving film Evita, and were just about to finally exhale as the credits started only to be abruptly brought back to reality by the annoying drone of one of Sky's voice-over people. We do not mind this at all after certain films, but after the very emotional and tear-jerking ones, it really ruins the whole atmosphere. I think, therefore, that by far the best solution to this problem, which I am sure has angered many Sky subscribers, is to have a strip of running text at the bottom of the screen. This would be far less intrusive, but it would be noticed and would serve to inform viewers of other programmes currently showing.

Jane Shepherd
Essex

RECENTLY many cable customers have complained about the voice-overs at the end of films, even going so far as to calling the perpetrators idiots. I find them very helpful for finding out what's coming next. Besides, the voice-over is brief and not very intrusive. I don't mind missing credits if it's to find out about more interesting viewing.

'Buffy the Vampire Slayer' received lower-than-expected ratings

BUFFY SLAIN!
I LOVE watching Buffy the Vampire Slayer on Sky One. The series ended on Saturday 11 July, but when the credits rolled the presenter didn't say when the channel would air the next series. I found this very frustrating, and would also like to know why Sky One ended the series when there were six more episodes in the season to go.

Katie Joyson
Weybridge, Surrey

I FIRSTLY have to say that Sky One is one of the best channels around. It shows all the top programmes way before terrestrial TV gets around to it. But I would like to know what they are playing at with Buffy the Vampire Slayer. They claim that Buffy has come to the end of its series on episode 16, but I know that this series goes on up to at least episode 22.

Alex Wiggan
Kidderminster, Worcs

I WOULD like to congratulate Sky One on the excellent series Buffy the Vampire Slayer. I have watched and recorded every episode. But I couldn't believe it when I heard the presenter say it was the last in the current series. David Boreanaz, who plays Angel, is a complete babe!

Fiona Lewin
Birmingham

● Sky replies: 'Ratings for Buffy the Vampire Slayer in its Saturday evening slot were not quite as high as we had hoped. We are presently searching for a more suitable slot before we broadcast the remaining episodes.'

FACTOR THREE?
EVER since I caught a glimpse of Psi Factor – Chronicles of the Paranormal on Sci-Fi Channel, I've been hooked. I've really enjoyed following the trials and tribulations of the team. But after a complicated second series full of intrigue, backstabbing and raw emotion I have to ask, when can I expect to see the third?

Jane Davey
Dagenham

● Sci-Fi Channel replies: 'The third series of Psi Factor is in production at the moment. We are in negotiation for it, but it won't be available for transmission until February 1999 at the earliest.'

SONGS AND PRAISE
PLEASE, Challenge TV, give Name That Tune another slot and let's have it on twice a day every day. It's a brilliant show! And the host, Jools Holland, has me spellbound with his cool way and good looks.

Joan Wood
Shadwell, Leeds

AT LONG LAST, DALLAS
THANK you for the scandal, the dirty deals, the glamour, the debauchery, the sheer brilliance of the stories and for giving me something to look forward to. Thank you for Dallas. I have waited so long for it. And now it's back and my dream has come true at last. The original soap opera. Thank you, UK Gold, for restoring my faith in TV bosses by showing my number one favourite programme of all time!

Joanne Gasy
Liverpool

TOO MUCH NUDITY
I AM writing to complain about the almost full-frontal nudity on cable TV. Plenty of channels are dedicated to showing women stripping off in a degrading fashion, ie, LIVE TV, Bravo, Granada Men & Motors, as well as the movie channels. I'm only 18 but even I have realised that not everyone wants to watch sleaze all the time, if at all. It can be embarrassing if you're watching with your partner!

WE'RE STILL RECEIVING LETTERS ABOUT ...

DAYS OF OUR LIVES
I WAS disappointed to learn that Sky One decided to take off Days of Our Lives. Sky told me they were making way for their summer line-up. But it's the viewers who watch all year who keep their station running, not school children who tune in during the summer break.

Mrs S Chapman
Worthing, West Sussex

I MUST air my discontent about Sky One taking Days of Our Lives off the air. The series ended at such a crucial point. It smacks of bad organisational skills, not to mention bad manners.

L Hovelmeier
Bournemouth

I FEEL stunned by the sudden removal of Days of Our Lives. If a channel run a programme every day for two years, then they are in some way responsible for seeing that loyal viewers are not just cut off at the most exciting point. It's mean and irresponsible.

Adam Cox, e-mail

THE MILLENNIUM
A NEWBORN child must complete 365 days before becoming one year old. Until then the child is zero years of age. In the same way, the first year of the first millennium was year zero, so it follows that the first year of our next millennium will start on January 1st of the year 2000, not 2001 as suggested by G Wainwright in the August 'Viewers' Views'.

Mr A F Shallis
Hanwell, London

CONSIDER a digital clock. A day ends at midnight but in an instant a new day starts and the clock marks the time as 00.00. If we substitute the year 1999 for 23.59 hours, it follows that 2000 is, like 00.00 hours, a new day, a new millennium.

Jack Kerr
Midlothian, Scotland

According to the Greenwich Observatory, the millennium begins on 1 January 2001, because when the calendar system was created, no allowance was made for the year zero.
